BRIEF PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The Department of Education (DepEd) started implementing its computerization program in early 2000s with the provision of computer package consisting of computer hardware and software, teacher training, and courseware under the program to select schools nationwide. The DepEd Computerization Program (DCP) primarily aims to provide public schools with appropriate technologies that would enhance the teaching-learning process and meet the challenges of the 21st century. Over the years, the objectives of DCP have evolved to also serve the governance and administrative requirements of the Department. DepEd outlines its targets for the program through its yearly issuances.

As of 2018, DCP's objectives as reflected in its profile of DepEd's programs and projects are to:

1. Provide sufficient number of updated computer packages to all public schools;
2. Provide sufficient number of computers for the augmentation of the existing computer packages to number of public schools;
3. Provide multimedia packages to all public school classrooms;
4. Provide high speed internet connectivity to all public schools;
5. Develop, enhance, and/or upgrade office information systems that will support the operations of DepEd in all levels; and
6. Upgrade and/or maintain ICT infrastructure to support the operation of DepEd central, regional, and division offices.

Given the massive investments poured into the program by the Department and significant support extended by donor partners, the ICTS has recently engaged a third party company to undertake a baseline study research. One of the study's objectives is to provide information on DCP implementation that will served as basis for future monitoring, assessment, and evaluation purposes.

Related to the undertaking, DepEd through Project Management Service-Project Development Division (PMS-PDD) aims to engage a Service Provider that will look into the processes of the DCP. The evaluation results will provide inputs for the improvement of program implementation and for similar future programs of the Department.

The studies, along with others pursued by the Department, are part of DepEd's response and alignment of efforts with the National Evaluation Framework of the Philippines issued through a joint NEDA and DBM memorandum circular in 2015.
